The Little Girl Lost is a 1794 poem published by William Blake in his collection Songs of Innocence and of Experience. According to scholar, Grevel Lindop, this poem represents Blake's pattern of the transition between "the spontaneous, imaginative Innocence of childhood" to the "complex and mature (but also more dangerous) adult state of Experience."

The Little Girl Lost - Synopsis and commentary Synopsis of The Little Girl Lost. The poem begins with two framing stanzas which introduce the poem as a vision of future restoration. It then turns to the vision. The child Lyca is wandering in the desert. She desires to sleep but feels unable to do so if her mother is worrying about her because she is lost. She can only sleep if her mother does ...
